LIVINGSTON COUNTY LAND BANK OVERVIEW

ABOUT US

Founded in 2017, the Livingston County Land Bank is a not-for-profit corporation based in Livingston County, New York. The Land Bank is dedicated to restoring communities across the County by acquiring vacant, abandoned, underutilized, and tax delinquent properties for demolition, rehabilitation, or sale to responsible owners. By working with our communities, state partners, contractors, and Livingston County government, the Land Bank is able to successfully and responsibly carry out its mission to support community development across the County.

MISSION

The mission of the Livingston County Land Bank Corporation is to support community development and the local economy by facilitating the return of vacant, underutilized, and tax-delinquent properties to productive use.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY LAND BANK CORPORATION CELEBRATES SUCCESSFUL MOUNT MORRIS PROPERTY REHABILITATION

GENESEO, N.Y., NOV. 22, 2024

The Livingston County Land Bank Corporation is pleased to announce the rehabilitation and sale of another of the area's previously vacant properties. Located at 24 Stanley Street in Mount Morris, N.Y., the project marks the latest success in the Land Bank's ongoing efforts to bring unused properties back to productive use across the region.

The Land Bank originally acquired the blighted Mount Morris property in January of 2022. The nonprofit group partnered with Avon-based local contractor Vonglis Enterprises to perform extensive renovations which restored the premises back to a safe and attractive residential living space.

"It's great to see the Land Bank fulfill its mission of turning vacant properties into productive homes," said Livingston County Land Bank Board Chairman Dan Pangrazio. "The success of this project shows that the Land Bank can continue to effectively pursue its mission in towns and villages across the county".

Since its establishment in August of 2017, the Livingston County Land Bank Corporation has actively worked to address vacant and abandoned properties throughout the region. The organization's efforts have resulted in a number of successful property redevelopments along with several strategic demolitions, all aimed bringing unused or underutilized tracts back to productive use.

"Seeing a vacant home be rehabilitated and turned into a nice new home for a family was great, and the Land Bank was essential to making this happen," said Mount Morris Mayor Joel Mike. "The Land Bank will continue working to develop vacant properties into productive homes for the benefit of the communities and families of Livingston County."

Livingston County Landbank Interim Executive Director Ian M. Coyle praised local community partners for their efforts on the project.

"Several folks deserve recognition for helping to make this project a reality," he said. "Among them are Vonglis Enterprises Owner Peter Vonglis, Realtor Anthony Scorsone, and all of our many partners on this successful redevelopment."

The Land Bank's mission is to support community development and boost the local economy by returning vacant, abandoned, underutilized, and tax-delinquent properties to productive use. Land Bank officials invite realtors, homeowners, code enforcement officials, and municipal leaders to join them in working to meet the community's needs for housing, recreation and other productive land uses.

MOBILE HOME REPLACEMENT PROJECT

PROJECT UPDATE

Livingston County was awarded $550,000.00 in NYS CDBG Housing funding from NYS OCR in November 2022 for a project to remove and replace three dilapidated mobile homes and to install new septic systems. The project was in partnership with Cattaraugus Community Action (CCA) and the Land Bank, with CCA managing program delivery and the Land Bank overseeing completion of administrative and grant reporting. The mobile home replacements were all completed by November 2024, providing three families with beautiful new homes. The grant was extended until December 31, 2024 with the closeout completed end of 2024.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY CELEBRATES SUCCESSFUL MOBILE HOME REPLACEMENT PROJECT

GENESEO, N.Y., JAN. 15, 2025

Livingston County is pleased to announce the successful replacement of three area mobile homes funded by the New York State Office of Community Renewal Mobile Home Replacement Program.

In November 2022, Livingston County was awarded $550,000 in NYS Community Development Block Grant Housing funding from the NYS Office of Community Renewal to remove and replace three mobile homes in the county. This program enabled the county, in partnership with the Livingston County Land Bank, to serve property owners in rural areas who often do not benefit from federal or state public infrastructure programs.

“This grant was a great opportunity to serve our rural residents,” said Livingston County Board of Supervisors Chair David LeFeber. “Ensuring affordability and quality of housing is a critical part of Livingston County’s infrastructure.”

Completed in November of 2024, the replaced mobile homes provided three local families with new homes, as well as septic systems. The new units all feature Energy Star certifications with high rating insulation; 95% or higher energy efficient furnaces; balanced electrical systems with high efficiency LED lighting; windows and doors rated for improved heat retention and prevention of air infiltration; reduced flow rate plumbing fixtures designed to conserve water; and improved siding and roofing materials.

Ruth Concepcion and Sean Daley of Conesus were among those selected to participate in the program through a lottery process. Both were amazed to see the savings produced by their new energy efficient home.

Concepcion stated, “I was so excited to see the first electric bill come in. It is almost half of what it used to be.”

The new homes’ use of energy smart building materials and appliances will save the homeowners 30% or more on energy costs, while lowering the overall carbon footprint.

Reflecting on the experience of being in this program, Concepcion said, “When this program became available, I was in tears. I was so excited at the thought of a new home that wouldn’t require constant work or unthawing frozen pipes all winter. I strongly encourage eligible applicants to apply to be part of this program when the county does it again. It was a blessing.”

A key factor in the success of this project was the collaborative effort with the Livingston County Land Bank, which played an essential role in administering the initiative.

“We are proud to have delivered the three new homes to families in Conesus, Nunda, and Springwater,” said Livingston County Land Bank Board Chair Dan Pangrazio. “These homes offer families not only a beautiful new residence but also a fresh opportunity for stability. The partnership between the county, the Land Bank, and Cattaraugus Community Action was integral to the project’s success. The Land Bank continues to be an effective tool for addressing housing needs directly in Livingston County.”
